The Green Man is represented in many cultures throughout the world as a head made of foliage. He relates to Celtic culture and can still be seen today on architecture around the world. The Green Man, and more often the Green Woman, is a legendary symbol which has been primarily interpreted as a symbol of rebirth, representing the cycle of new growth that occurs every spring. The Green Man and or Green Woman is commonly depicted in sculptures, Canadian Parliament buildings or other buildings and has a representation of a face which is made of, or completely surrounded by, leaves which represents our connection with nature.
